

Spiritual Support

If you do not have a spiritual affiliation, or would like additional support, a member of the Grane Hospice Care Pastoral Care Team can contact you.

While Pastoral Care sometimes deals with religious concerns, it is more than “God talk”. As a discipline, Pastoral Care is available to help people as they struggle with questions and feelings which are often raised by a life-threatening illness:

Why me?

Why do good people suffer?

How do I find spiritual peace?

What are my beliefs and feelings about illness and death?

How do I understand the successes and failures of my life?

How do I deal with regrets?

What do I need to say to the people I love?

Pastoral Care Team

The Pastoral Care Team at Grane Hospice Care is comprised of volunteer ministers with various religious affiliations. However, in keeping with the Hospice philosophy, the goal of the Hospice Pastoral Care Team is to provide an interfaith forum where the spiritual needs of the individual is in the foreground, not the denomination.

Caring For The Whole Person

Grane Hospice Care seeks to address the needs of the whole person. Patients and families have access to a wide range of Hospice services provided by professionally trained members of our Interdisciplinary Team. In addition to physicians, nurses, aides, social workers and volunteers, Grane Hospice Care offers “Pastoral Care” on both a routine and an emergency basis.

Your Spiritual Connection

If you have a spiritual affiliation, with your permission, we will contact your minister to advise him or her that you are in our care. We will also invite your minister to communicate with our Interdisciplinary Team so that mutually, we can best serve your needs.

Our Ministers Will:

Provide a listening ear when you are worried, afraid or just need to talk

Address spiritual concerns

Pray with you, read Scripture or just sit quietly

Provide or arrange for Christian sacraments or other religious rites

Conduct funeral or memorial services
